

The Research Institute of Northeastern Arts and Culture, Mahasarakham University: a granary of wisdom and sustainable social development

The Research Institute of Northeastern Art and Culture Maha Sarakham University was established in 1986 as a center for research for arts and culture in the Northeast which is linked to the body of knowledge of national and international levels. Within the institute, there are learning resources for the arts of local artists, woven fabrics of the Mekong Subregion, ancient documents, Isan music, and an information center on Isan arts and culture.